1 Foreword

Corporate Responsibility (CR) refers to a company's level of responsibility in whatever location its business activities impact on society in general, its employees, the environment and its business partners. More specifically CR stands for a corporate philosophy that puts transparency, ethical behavior and respect for stakeholders at the forefront of its entrepreneurial activities. In the CR concept approved by the Management Board of Deutsche Börse Group (DBG) the term "CR" includes among other things, "Community Commitment". In 2008 the DBG CR concept is to be expanded to include "Environment" and "Diversity".

This report provides an overview of the DBG's Group-wide Community Commitment (CC) activities in the calendar year 2007. It is divided into four sections "Education and Science", "Art and Culture", "Corporate Affairs" and "Social Affairs". It includes a selection of important projects and activities in 2007 in the four areas supported.
